Police tell merchants how not to get robbed

BELLE GLADE — A trio of police officers gave pointers to city merchants Wednesday night on the best ways to get robbed, telling them of the ways they can help armed robbers get the loot they're after and get away... and conversely, how to take steps to avoid the same robberies and help catch the robbers.

The seminar was the third in a series of presentations being made by the Police Department, beginning Dec. 10 and Police Inspector Michael Miller said it was the best attended.

Lt. Lynn Lowery, who assisted Miller with Training Officer Dan Crist, said he had counted 41 merchants at the seminar Wednesday night, compared to no more than 15 at the first armed robbery seminar or the one on shoplifting.

Miller said the department had been requested for help by some of the city's merchants on handling robbery situations and the series of seminars are the result.

"This gives us a chance to hear from the merchants as well as giving us a chance to tell them how they can help us," Miller said after the meeting. Noting that some of the questions from the merchants came in the form of complaints, he said he didn't mind answering the complaints, even when they're justified, because he believes most people realize police officers are human and make mistakes too.

"Besides," Crist remarked, "this gives us a chance to do some PR (public relations) and shows the people of the town we care about their problems."

Miller began the meeting by showing a film produced by the state, aimed at preventing commercial armed robberies and showing several situations in which the merchants actually helped the robbers by making their task easier.

After the film, Miller commented that more than 100,000 armed robberies were committed last year, one every 4½ minutes, that an average of $200-$300 was taken and that somebody was hurt or killed in one of four.

He said robbers plan their actions and pick targets because they're easier than the merchant down the street, that they check for entrances and exits and usually enter the store with an eye on the people in it.

He urged the merchants to immediately telephone the police if they see anyone acting suspicious. "We'd rather respond to 10 to 15 false complaints than respond to one armed robbery," he said. "We're here to prevent robberies."

Miller said the best prevention of armed robberies by merchants is to install an alarm system and then let people know about it by putting signs up telling them the store is so equipped.

Other preventive measures, he said, include keeping counter displays and window posters low so a line of sight is available, to keep excess money locked in the store safe, to make regular bank deposits but not in a pattern potential robbers can observe and, if possible, make sure no single employee is working at night.

If a robbery occurs, Miller said, the merchants' primary responsibility should be to "do anything it takes to stay alive. Our primary concern is to prevent the loss of life. The loss of property or money comes second... a distant second."

During the question and answer session that followed the presentation, several store owners asked under what conditions they could legally shoot a robber.

As a rule of thumb, Miller advised them to shoot only to save a person's life. He said they have a constitutional right to protect their property but said there is always the danger of hitting an innocent bystander, that the robber will shoot first and injure or kill the merchant and even if the robber is killed, the merchant competition charged Glades General, new doctor sued

BELLE GLADE—The widow and daughter of a man who died in the emergency room at Glades General Hospital after being involved in an automobile accident have filed a malpractice suit against the hospital's new emergency services director.

Belle Glade attorney Calisto M. Casals said Tuesday he couldn't comment on the case except to say he had filed the suit on behalf of Irene and Lisbela Martinez, the widow and daughter of the late Jorge Torres Martinez, of 308 N. Main St., "because we believe the treatment was wrong."

The suit, which Casals filed in 15th Circuit Court on Dec. 27, claims that Martinez was brought to the hospital's emergency room on Nov. 1 after being involved in an auto accident.

"Dr. Richard Thomas," the suit says, "acting as a physician in the emergency room, took care of Mr. Martinez, administering and treating Mr. Martinez with standards of care below the accepted level of care and skill recognized by the profession and treating him for respiratory problems instead of suspecting brain damage in view of the symptoms presented by Mr. Martinez."

"Other treatments prescribed by Dr. Thomas," the suit goes on, "were also unacceptable and directly responsible for the death of Mr. Martinez. The Board of Trustees (of the hospital) has been backing the actions of Mr. Lennon with very little supervision or with no supervision at all."

The suit also claims Dr. Thomas' actions, "represented a gross breach of the accepted standards of care by the Medical Profession," and that the hospital's, "care skill and treatment were not at the level of the standards recognized by a reasonable prudent similar health care provider accepted under similar conditions and circumstances."

Lennon is accused of being negligent in not following the normal procedure at the hospital of having Dr. Thomas sponsored by a member of the medical staff, of having the staff screen and approve his credentials and of disregarding the authority of the medical staff by bringing Dr.

Thomas to the hospital to practice medicine, "and even compete with the members of the staff without having his credentials previously approved."

Dr. Thomas, at the time the incident took place, was acting with temporary privileges granted him on Sept. 10 by Dr. Miguel A. Tome in a letter concurring with a request by Lennon.

Lennon said he requested temporary privileges at the time for Dr. Thomas, Dr. Patrick Riordan and Dr. Melvin Yarlott. Dr. Thomas and Dr. Riordan were granted permanent status on the medical staff on Dec. 26 and Dr. Yarlott, a surgeon exploring the possibility of opening a practice in the area, decided against relocating here.

Dr. Thomas and Dr. Riordan were appointed to the staff during the December meeting of the board of trustees when the medical staff failed to make a recommendation to either appoint or reject the two doctors.

The board had requested on Oct. see Hospital 3A

Belle Glade irate over census

BELLE GLADE — The city commission, expressing its anger over the way the 1980 census is to be conducted, authorized city attorney John Baker Monday night to draft a letter protesting the use of the U.S. Postal Service as the vehicle to distribute the forms.

City Manager Robert Sanders, reminding the commissioners they had asked him to keep them informed on the census this year because they were dissatisfied with the 1970 census results in Belle Glade, said city representatives had been attending a number of meetings in West Palm Beach.

The information coming from those meetings, he said, indicates the census is to be taken by mail this year and that although cities are being encouraged to form complete count committees in a public relations drive, there was nothing beyond that the city can do to help. Sanders said the complete count committee, which is to be appointed by the mayor, will have the job of speaking at public meetings such as civic clubs in an effort to persuade the residents to complete their census forms and return them by April 1.

He said the committees wouldn't be allowed to give any other help such as distributing the forms door to door.

"A mail-out census," Commissioner Tom Altman said, "is probably the stupidest idea I've ever heard of."

Commissioner Dorothy Walker agreed and added to Altman's suggestion that Baker write a letter in protest that Mayor Ralph Kirk appoint the committee.

City Planner Joe Fay, who has been attending some of the census meetings on the coast, said a Bureau of the Census officials estimated at one of the meetings that 90 per cent of the census forms would be returned by mail.

"That got the biggest laugh of the meeting," he said when the commissioners stopped laughing, amid comments to the effect that the bureau would be lucky if 50 per cent of the forms were even delivered, much less returned.

Fay said the city would probably be required to hold a meeting with census officials because that is one of the steps should the bureau and the city disagree on preliminary estimates of the city's population.

He said that would probably happen because the bureau's estimate will probably run in the neighborhood of 17,500 while the city's Planning and Building Department estimates 19,000.

Fay said the bureau and the city are expected to come up with Government too wordy--Liberti

BELLE GLADE—State Representative Ray Liberti told Belle Glade Rotarians Tuesday one of his more important goals in the coming legislative session will be to pass a bill requiring governmental agencies to budget all publications as fine items.

"There's no other way to put it," Liberti said when he told the Rotarians about the bill being introduced last year. "That bill raised holy hell. Every agency came down and fought it in committee but the committee knew it was an idea whose time had come."

He said the bill, designed to prevent the printing of unnecessary documents, didn't pass last year but a special committee has been set up to solve that particular problem.

Illustrating his point, Liberti, who said he'd visited Glades Correctional Institution that morning as part of his assignment to the Parole and Probation Committee, read a long statement on a form he'd been given by GCI Secretary tendent R.V. Turner.

The statement was the legal description of what one prisoner was convicted for and, after reading for more than a minute, he finished it, looked up and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, what it says is he shot and killed a man."

Liberti said another example of useless documents printed at taxpayers' expense is a color pamphlet he received explaining how to use the Susan B. Anthony dollar, going so far as to tell merchants how to make change.

"One of the major advantages of the Susan B. Anthony dollar, according to the pamphlet," he said, "is that if you drop it, you can hear it fall. That's the kind of garbage you're paying to have printed and distributed."

Liberti said there were 48 freshman representatives, of a total of 120, in the House of Representatives this session and said he thinks there is a new tone being set.

BY DEAN JONES

Well, all I can say is that anyone stupid enough to kiss a turtle deserves to have his lip sucked onto.

Course that begs the question of who would be stupid enough to want to kiss a turtle in the first place... a legitimate question but, having been trained to ask a few more questions, I was also interested in why anyone would want to kiss a turtle, no matter how stupid he is.

I mean, turtles may be all right. They may even be attractive to other turtles, although I'm not sure how much attraction a green sea turtle would have for an alligator snapper.

But I always did say that if I were going to come out of the closet with my perversions, it wouldn't be with a turtle. And if you think I'm got it any further in this vein, you're crazy.

Turned out though, it was a congratulatory kiss and if that ain't enough, another question that has a bearing on the case in hand was where it took place, which was in California and that answered a multitude of questions.

I mean, where else but California would you find somebody, racing a turtle even, much less, once the turtle's won the race, picking it up and giving it a congratulatory kiss? Not that I don't like turtles, mind. Heck, I can't make up my mind which way I like 'em best, fried or in soup. Turtle eggs are good too.

You might even say I love turtles but I don't get mushy about it.

I guess I'm just crackey enough, too, that if I ever did let my emotions run away with me and develop an instant insanity deep enough to give a turtle a crack at my lip, no matter if he was a pet and had just won a race for me, you can bet there'd be turtle soup or fried turtle somewhere shortly.

Not in California, in California. Where else, they treated the turtle a bit more gently. They didn't pry him off until they administered a dose of Valium.

I dunno what they did with the wacky turtle lover. Prob'ly sent him to see a shrink. They're pretty good in California too and it's things like this that make me understand why.

Strangely enough, though, it wasn't in California where another event involving wildlife, which was passing strange indeed, took place. It was in Falls Church, Va., that a raccoon was nailed in a bag with a little ring-tailed masked bandit couldn't be satisfied with breaking and entering the office of a local Virginia physicist and making off with a load of narcotics for his loot. He had to come back for seconds and the doctor was waiting for him.

I said last week the animals of the world were making noises like they're ready to take over right now. Since then, as a matter of fact, I did go home one day and there was my cat, stretched out in the recliner, smoking, cussing at watching television.

I didn't blame her for the cussing part though. I would do it if it's the only thing I could tune in was a rerun of Gilligan's Island.

Anyway, back to South Africa, after the trip last week to see the wine-swilling, beer-guzzling, cigarette-smoking baboons, seems there was a swarm of bees that nested hundreds of school girls at track meet in Verseniging. According to the article by the National Wildlife Federation, the bees were attracted by the girls' hair spray.

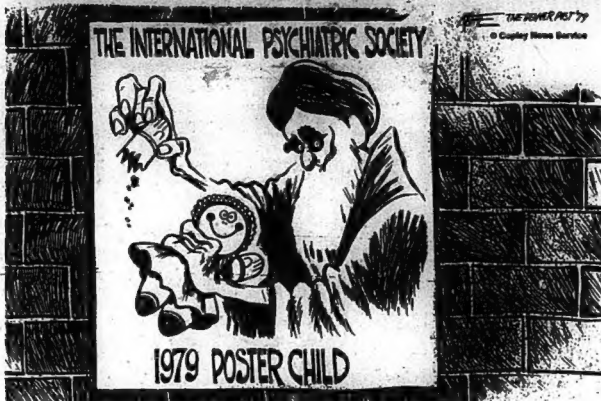

Bull, to coin a phrase. Those were male chauvinist bees who were just out to put those girls in their places, which they figured were in the hands of the younger kids, church or in the kitchen. Those were Boer bees.

If all that happening in 1979 wasn't a sign the animals are coming, don't forget the man-eating rabbit Jimmy Carter had to beat off with a canoe paddle.

It didn't all go on any top off. There was a Washington D.C. doctor who struck back, beating a Canada goose to death with a golf club, "allegedly after the bird's homing interfered with his putting."

Now, I don't hold any brief for cruelty to animals but I don't know what else the goose could expect. Heck, even I know better than to walk up behind somebody getting ready to make a putt and scare the Bejabbers out of him.

Those golfers are crazy.

Speedy decision is needed

Despite an apparently popular misconception the city is attempting to deny Belle Glade Commissioner Dorothy Walker of her rights under a stay granted her Jan. 4, the city commission took the proper course in seeking clarification of the stay and a speedy appeals process.

Just so long as Miss Walker's actions on the commission can be considered questionable in the light of possible affirmation of Judge Williams' original ruling declaring her election to the commission null and void, that is how long the city is facing an intolerable situation.

It's bad enough that the city may have to review every action between Oct. 1 and Dec. 13 but when the same judge, who said Miss Walker isn't a bonafide resident of the East Borough and that she was never legally elected to office, says she can continue to sit with full powers, he's extending that intolerable situation.

From here, the obvious answer, if Judge Williams decided it was proper to hold up enforcement of his original order for a new election, would be to either stipulate that Miss Walker's actions should be considered binding whatever the final outcome of the case or he should have refused to reseal her in the interim.

One of the more bizarre possibilities became reality Monday night when Miss Walker seconded the motion to ask Judge Williams to reconsider his stay, which he could do by unseating her again, and then walking away when the roll was called for the motion.

Without some clarification, that motion, which may affect the case, could be declared illegal and void after the judge acts upon it.

The legality of four other motions made by the commission that night could also be questioned in the future since she seconded a total of four motions and made a motion during the meeting.

A modification of Judge Williams' stay would seem to be in order but, failing that, a speedy appeal would be a definite asset.

Help PBJC

As distasteful as is the idea, to everyone, of paying taxes; it's hard to see how any reasonable person could object to the half-mill tax that'll be on the Mar. 11 presidential primary ballot to be used to do badly needed maintenance work at Palm Beach Junior College.

PBJC is the oldest junior college in the state's 28-school junior college system and has become over the past few years a true community college, serving not only Palm Beach County in its entirety but portions of other counties as well.

Because of its age, many of the buildings, particularly at PBJC-Central's campus, have become rundown and need extensive repairs. The PBJC Board of Trustees have figured they have a total of $15 million in unmet needs for which no revenue is in sight.

Not all of those needs are maintenance-related. All too many have been caused by the federal government making demands to accommodate handicapped citizens without making any allocations to pay for those improvements.

But that's neither here nor there. There are $15 million worth of unmet needs at an institution which has faithfully served the community since 1933, an institution which continues to grow in order to serve the community better.

Without those funds, the college is in bad shape, physically and financially.

The special tax, which will cost the average homeowner in the county the princely sum of $12 for each of the two years it is in effect, and two years is the maximum, will only raise $8 million to meet those needs.

That's not enough by half but a half mill is the maximum tax the state will allow the college to assess.

It's little enough, especially in light of the fact the state has, in turn, cut the allowable millage from eight to 6.7 for the county school board and is offering the public a chance to increase homestead exemption from $5,000 to $25,000... two moves calculated to save the average county homeowner between $168 and $200 a year.

This is one tax that deserves the taxpayers' support.

A stupid count

Belle Glade City Manager Robert Sanders may have been jesting Monday night when he suggested an effort be mounted to persuade all the city residents to refuse to return their census forms on April 1 but it wasn't nearly the joke made seriously by a census bureaucrat who estimated 90 per cent of the census forms would be returned.

But the decennial census itself may have become the biggest joke of all over the past 20 to 30 years.

The census forms themselves have grown from what started out in 1790 as a simple count of heads to, at least for every sixth family this year, an eight page inventory of such information as whether a family gets its water from a public source, and individual drilled well, an individual dug well or other.

Where a family gets its water may be of interest to that family but it's hard to figure why the federal government should take an interest.

Granted, there may be a legitimate interest in what fuels are used in homes around the country, what with the energy problems facing the nation but whose business is it whether there's an elevator in our mobile home, when our house was built, how many bathrooms we have, whether we have air conditioning, a telephone or a complete kitchen and how many bedrooms, cars or vans we have and how much we paid last year in real estate taxes.

And we certainly don't see what business it is of the government or anyone else whether we're married or single or whether we're Guamanian, Aleut, Korean, Puerto Rican, Cuban or Black or Negro (pick one). A good number of us are Heinz 57 anyway.

All those complaints are based on the fact the federal government is getting to nosy but another one is that this year, they're not even bothering to get out and make a count. They're relying on the mail.

As unreliable as past censuses have been (ask any city official), they were at least done by census workers going out, beating the streets and making eyeball contact with the people.

To think 90 per cent of the census forms will be returned, as a city official reported was estimated in a recent meeting, passes from the ridiculous to the sublime.

It's unlikely anything like 90 per cent of the census forms will even be delivered and if more than 60 per cent of the people sent census forms return them, the feds can count that as gravy.

To make matters worse, local government is handed its largesse from the federal government largely in direct proportion and based on census information. If that information is inaccurate or incomplete, local government can only lose out, and that means you are losing.

To aggravate matters, the census bureau is advising local governments, such as the three cities in the area, that they can form complete count committees to help spread the word on the importance of completing and returning the census forms but those committees are being refused the opportunity to do anything more than public relations.

Presumably, from what the Belle Glade City Commission was told Monday, the city could even offer to take the census forms door to door to be sure of an accurate count and that offer would be refused.

One thing that did come out in the meetings on the census, however, was the field workers would be sent out to see why in cases of census reports that weren't returned.

So Sanders may have had the right solution by proposing that instead of mounting a public relations campaign to persuade people to fill out and return the census forms, they ought to mount a campaign to persuade people to ignore the forms.

At least we'd get workers out to check the number of people who were mailed the forms, even if they don't perform a house-to-house check.

BACKTALK

This week, Backtalk talked with people shopping or working at the Glades Shopping Plaza. The question asked was, "Are you satisfied with the way the U.S. government is handling the situation in Iran involving the hostages?"

President Carter is in, I don't think anyone else could do any better. And I don't think any of the other candidates could either.

Jim Powell, Belle Glade—No. If we'd gone in the day after they took over the embassy and taken them (the hostages) back, we could have avoided Afghanistan and the Saudi Arabian problem.

Georgia Maldonado, South Bay—At first I was impressed with President Carter and the restraint he used but some type of action is needed now. I don't advocate military action, but something more positive is needed, maybe a naval blockade with our allies. And our allies should show us they are with us.

Tom Perryman, Belle Glade—No, not really. Not at all. I don't think we should trade 50 people off for the sake of one man—one human being. I think they should give up a naval ship and get the hostages returned.

Bruce Brancati, Belle Glade—I can't say I'm satisfied with what they've done when they haven't done anything. It's very difficult not being completely informed—only knowing what I read in the papers but it was ridiculous to let it go this far and this long without doing anything at all. We should have shown some reaction from Day One. Anything we do now we could have done at the start.

McDonald, Belle Glade—satisfied but there's can do about it. I would to come home unharmed could, but I don't know why way could be done.

Robbery

would have to face a grand jury. "It would probably be found to be a justifiable homicide," he said, "but you would have to go before the grand jury and you would have to prove he was threatening your life and property."

When one of the merchants said that if he shot at a robber, he'd kill him, Miller pointed out there's always the chance of hitting someone else and that he could shoot the robber and the bullet could go all the way through and strike a second person.

He said the only evidence in many armed robberies is the eye witness account of the victim and possible witnesses.

Crist gave a demonstration of the use of the identikit, from which he said he could reconstruct the likeness of 6 billion faces but he said there are limits.

He cautioned the merchants that if a robbery occurs, they shouldn't allow the witnesses to discuss their impressions with each other because that would destroy the possibility of using the identikit to best advantage.

He said the merchants should also try to keep any customers in the store at the time until the police arrive, because they might provide information the merchant and his employees missed, but to close the doors to anyone else.

Miller said after the meeting the police department has had excellent results on its last three armed robbery cases, making arrests in all three incidents and getting convictions on the first two. The third hasn't come to trial yet, he said.

"But that's unusual," the inspector said. "The arrest rate for armed robberies, across the nation, is probably about one in every ten and the conviction rate is probably somewhere about 1 per cent."

1 that the staff refer the matter to the staff credentials committee, which would normally make a recommendation to the staff as a whole.

According to minutes of the meetings, the credentials committee came out originally with a statement that nothing was wrong with Dr. Thomas' credentials but sent Dr. Rioridan's application back to Lennon with a request for more information, particularly documentation that he had completed medical school at National University of Ireland in Dublin.

Lennon said during the Dec. 26 meeting he had no record of the medical staff making a decision on either Dr. Thomas or Dr. Rioridan and Robert Mathews, the board attorney, said the question was no longer one of reservations on the part of the medical staff but one of due process.

Dr. Manuel Soto, newly elected chief of staff, objected during the meeting to the appointment of Dr. Thomas but refused to say why. Dr. Soto asked several times during the meeting if he could get advice from Mathews on the question of admitting Dr. Thomas but Mathews said that would constitute a conflict of interest.

Board Chairman Sandra Chamblee said at the time she was reluctant to appoint the two doctors over the heads of the other staff physicians but the staff had been "dragging its feet" and the board moved to appoint the two physicians to the staff.

Normally, the medical staff recommends the appointment or rejection of physicians to the staff but the authority to appoint physicians to the staff is held by the board of trustees, according to board's by-laws.

It was during the board's Dec. 26 meeting that the members re-appointed the existing medical staff and approved the staff's election of officers for 1980, as well as committee appointments.

Dr. Thomas, according to Lennon, is an employee of the hospital as well as being on the medical staff. Lennon said he is authorized to treat emergency patients in the emergency room but once they're admitted or sent home, they're referred to other physicians in the community.

Among his other duties, Dr. Thomas was hired by the hospital to assume responsibility for Advanced Emergency Service (AES) in the ambulances to be serving the area.

Because the suit is a malpractice suit, the case will go before a medical mediation panel before going to court. The panel will be made up of attorneys and physicians and will determine how likely it is that malpractice occurred.

The panel's decision isn't binding, however, and even if it decides it wasn't likely malpractice occurred, Mrs. Martinez can take the matter to court. As of Wednesday, the panel hadn't been chosen.

Girl Crusaders win two, now 9-0

BELLE GLADE -- The Christian Day School girls basketball team defeated Glades Day School and King's Academy during the past week to extend their unbeaten record to 9-0 while the varsity boys team split a win and a loss and the junior varsity won two games.

The girls started their week with a 54-39 win over Glades Day last Thursday and added a 50-39 victory over Kings Tuesday.

Paula Anderson was the key to Tuesday's win over Kings. She scored 26 points and made 14 rebounds while shooting 76.9 per cent from the field.

Joni Davis also scored in double figures, making ten points but she also made 17 rebounds, three assists and one steal. She was followed by Sylvia McCall with eight points, two rebounds, two assists and three steals. Tammie Campbell with four points and seven steals, Lisa Acree with two points, three assists, four steals and four rebounds.

Playing against Glades Day last Thursday, Joni Davis set a school record, according to junior varsity coach Gus Harmon, making 33 points, 27 rebounds, six assists and two steals.

Paula Anderson made 10 points, eight rebounds, two assists and one steal. Sylvia McCall made six points, one rebound and five assists, Tammie Campbell made two points, one rebound and three assists and Angie Miller made four points.

Christian Day's girls set the pace early, leading 24-2 at the end of the first quarter. Four distaff Crusaders fouled out during the game.

In varsity play, the boys lost to Kings Academy, now ranked seventh in the state, by a score of 71-51. Kings now has a season record of 13-2. Jesus Armas led the Crusaders with 17 points, seven rebounds, two assists and one steal, followed by William Crews with eight points, eight rebounds and two steals, Kent Davis with eight and four, Carlos Solar with six points, Bill Taylor with five points, nine rebounds and 10 blocks, Alex Hermida with four points, three rebounds and one steal and Freddy Alvarez with three points and five rebounds.

The Crusaders now have an 8-2 record for the season.

Last Saturday, the Crusaders won an easy 74-44 victory over Southern Academy, playing in West Palm Beach, and even the two junior varsity team members playing, every player scored.

Jesus Armas was the leading scorer of the game with 21 points, the highest of four double-figure players. He was followed by Carlos Solar with 12 points, William Crews and Freddy Alvarez with 11 points each.

They were followed by Alex Hermida with eight points, Ty Garcia with six, Kent Davis with four, Louis Garcia with two and Tracy Shey with one.

Coach Gus Harmon's junior varsity Crusaders racked up a 4-37 win over Kings Academy Tuesday and a 64-60 battle against Glades Day.

Against Kings, Harmon said the key to the game was defense on the offense was sluggish in sputtering.

Louis Garcia was the leading scorer against Glades Day, racking up 25 points, six rebounds, on assist and one steal but Harmon said Roly Ramos was the key to the game, coming off the bench, make 13 points, 16 rebounds, 11 assists and one block.

"He really gave us some support when we got into foul trouble," Harmon said, "by coming in as a substitute and playing so well. He was the difference in the game."

Tavi Garcia was the second highest scorer, making 16 points, 10 rebounds, seven assists and two steals. He was followed by Stewart Hatten with seven and four, B. Hancock with two points and on assist and Hugo Mates with on point.

The Crusaders meet Glades Day again Saturday, with the junior varsity teams kicking off action at 8:30 p.m. and the varsity teams taking the court at 8.

Couple die in murder-suicide

BELLE GLADE -- Police were still investigating Tuesday night the apparent murder-suicide that claimed the lives of Roberto Castro, 37, and his wife, Maria Elsa Castro, 32, of 908 N.W. 29th St. Tuesday night.

Lt. Lynn Lowery said the double homicide was apparently the result of an argument and Castro apparently got a gun and shot his wife twice in the face, then turned it on himself, shooting himself in the head.

Detectives J. R. Eberle and John Carney investigated the incident. Lowery said, and autopsies were performed Wednesday and the bodies had been released to a funeral home.

Reportedly present at the time the argument took place and the shooting began were the couple's daughter, Juanita Castro, 6, and Mrs. Castro's son by a former marriage, David Montero, 10.

When the shooting started, the two children ran to a neighbor's home.

Farm Facts

By Larry Schwandes
(University of Florida Agricultural & Educational Center, Belle Glade)

(Palm Beach County Extension Agent)

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently released a publication entitled "Vegetables - 1979 Annual Summary." This booklet gives production figures for fresh vegetables produced across the nation. It has some interesting facts.

If someone asked you what are the five leading states that produce vegetables for fresh market could you name them? Most people would guess the states of California, Florida and Texas. But what about the next two states. Here are the production figures...

State	% of total
California	44.1
Florida	15.1
Texas	8.0
New York	4.7
Arizona	4.7
All others	23.4

New York and Arizona as leading vegetable producers is a surprise to most of us. Other interesting questions might be what are the ten leading fresh vegetables produced in the nation? And of these top ten vegetables which one is the leading crop? Let's look at the production figures.

In this data we see that more lettuce is grown than any other crop. Lettuce also ranks as the leading cash crop. Being a nation of salad eaters we shouldn't be too surprised to find lettuce, onion, and tomatoes toward the top of the list.

Cecil Miller, an Arizona cattle rancher, was elected AFBF vice president.

FFBF was represented at a national meeting by delegates J. W. Hill, Jasper; James Dickinson; Froestproff; Tommy Lawrence; Deland; John H. Talton; Apoph Henry Bussey, Ft. White; Sh. wood Johnson, Ft. Pierce; a Kautz.

Approximately 245 FFBF members traveled to Phoenix for a national meeting, which featured Nicholas Henderson, British Ambassador to the United States, Ambassador Reubin O'D. Askie Trade Representative and from Florida Governor; and entertain Bob Hope.

FFBF represents more than 85,500 member-families in Florida.

Farmers support Carter policy

GAINESVILLE—Prompted by President Carter's evaluation of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan as a "threat to our national security," the Florida Farm Bureau Federation (FFBF) has joined with the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) in calling for "total suspension of all non-diplomatic relations with the USSR."

The embargo will not have a direct or immediate impact on Florida farmers," said Walter J. Kautz, FFBF president. "But the embargo will affect all Floridians in the form of continued inflation and weakening of the dollar abroad."

FFBF is the state's largest general farm organization representing more than 85,500 member-families. The AFBF represents 3.1 million member-families in 49 states and Puerto Rico.

According to AFBF economist John K. Houseman, 1980 net farm income will decline $3.1 billion and net cash receipts will drop 25 percent as a result of the embargo. Most of those farmers affected will be in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa.

The value of all Florida corn and wheat grown for grain and soybeans exceeded $105 million in 1979.

The AFBF policy, adopted Jan. 9 by delegates attending the 61st annual meeting of the AFBF in Phoenix, Ariz., calls for support from all segments of the U.S. In part, the policy states: "We urge the president to take the necessary steps to end all cultural and economic contacts with the USSR. These include business contracts, exchange programs, participation in the 1980 Summer Olympic Games and all other contacts other than diplomatic ties necessary to resolve the current situation."

"Traditionally, the Farm Bureau has opposed the use of food as a political weapon unless national security was at stake," Kautz said. "National security, unity and support of fellow farmers are the foundations of the policy."

Activity on the Chicago Board of Trade was encouraging on the second day of its re-opening as foreign buyers sparked a late rally, lifting futures prices of grain and soybeans. Commodities trading was suspended Jan. 7-8. FFBF commodities specialists expect market uncertainties to prevail for a short period, eventually leveling followed by a slow recovery.

Soybeans will be the Florida crop most affected by the embargo, according to FFBF estimates. "The biggest problem we face that soybeans planted already in this year's crop were based projected demand," Kautz said. Florida farmers harvested 11 million bushels of soybeans in 1979 worth an estimated $64 million.

Local man in Sun Bowl

By John West
Special to the Herald Observer

EL PASO, Texas (USAHTNC)—Playing in the 1979 Sun Bowl at El Paso meant something quite different to a soldier from South Bay involved. He was a noisy part of the halftime show.

Sgt. Michael M. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rennick C. Morris of 185 N. W. 6th Ave. in South Bay, is an air defense artilleryman assigned to Battery D, 1st of the 65th Air Defense Artillery Battalion, Ft. Bliss, Texas. He and 17 members of his unit were chosen to fire the salute at this nationally televised bowl game. Commenting on this duty, Morris said, "I felt it was great for myself and the battery to represent the Army."

Army participation in this activity was part of a campaign to increase public awareness of the need and value of service to country. A highlight of this occasion was the presentation of the newly created Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal.

Receiving this highest award in merit in peacetime service was General of the Army Omar Br. ley, 86, the last surviving five star General.

Regarding his future, Morris plans on staying in a few more years. "I'd like to pick up some more schooling to make a better life for my family," he said.

Morris is a 1974 graduate Glades Central High School Belle Glade.

It's a money-back offer

IRS seeking VITA volunteers

Internal Revenue Service wants to help Glades wage earners get what's coming to them — money withheld from their pay for income taxes they don't owe.

According to Paula Wiggins of the West Palm Beach IRS office, there are numerous Glades residents in the low-income bracket who fail to file income tax returns and consequently deprive themselves of refunds due them of money withheld from their wages.

Mrs. Wiggins heads the area VITA program, Volunteer Income Tax Assistance, a project sponsored by IRS to train volunteers to help others prepare income tax returns.

Those persons most often affected are the elderly and the non-English speaking laborers. IRS has found. Either because their income is low or they don't comprehend the filing procedures, they fail to submit income tax returns and thus forfeit the money they could get back through credits for the elderly or for child-care deductions, Mrs. Wiggins explains.

In order to set up the VITA program in the Glades area, IRS is seeking volunteers to enroll in a four-session training course to be held Jan. 21 through Feb. 5 at the Eastlake Middle School in Pahokee.

The volunteers will learn to with the basic instructions on fil tax returns so they can act as others during the tax filing period ending April 15.

The sessions will be held on 1 successful Monday and Tuesday nights from 6:30 until 9 o'clock.

"No background in mathematics or accounting is required," Mrs. Wiggins. Anyone with general education may enroll, there are no age limitations. "We are looking for anyone from 16 up," she says.

Those wishing to register seeking additional information should contact Mattie Crawford the Eastlake Middle School.

Although this is the first call VITA volunteers in the area, VITA program has been conducted up to now by Florida Rural Le Services, the Community Action Council and other civic groups. These groups will continue to offer assistance, according to Wiggins.

Plans for establishing VITA training in Belle Glade are being made, said Mrs. Wiggins who serves as a coordinator for IRS program.

"We have been offered space the Division of Aging," she said, "and we are now seeking instructors to teach the course."

'Throw a nickel on the grass'

'Too few general aviation pilots realize how frequently they share airspace at low altitudes with tactical fighters.'

By PAUL HIGBEE
Major, USAF

EDITOR'S NOTE: Major Paul Higbee of 31 Tactical Fighter Wing/DOAM at Homestead AFB has been involved for some time in a public information program designed to lower the risk of mid-air collisions between Air Force fighters using the Avon Park Bombing Range and general aviation pilots in this area.

Too few general aviation pilots realize how frequently they share airspace at low altitudes with tactical fighters such as the F-4 Phantom. And some pilots don't realize that these fighters may be flying a lot faster than the usual 250 knots (284 mph) airspeed limit that applies to most aircraft flying below 10,000 feet.

Low altitude, high speed tactics would be needed to penetrate enemy air defense systems. The military departments and Federal Aviation Administration have jointly established Military Training Routes so that American fighter pilots can learn to safely fly low and Major Higbee said he has been visiting a number of air strips in the Lake Okechobee area, including airports at Clewiston, Belle Glade and Pahokee and private strips used by farmers and agricultural application pilots.

On a recent trip through the Clewiston Airport, he said he spoke to one pilot who is supposed to be setting up a meeting for him with local pilots, including members of the local Civil Air Patrol.

fast. In Florida there are over a dozen such routes.

The Air Force Phantoms typically fly their low altitude, high speed training at 350 knots or faster and at 500 feet above the ground. Some routes have terrain following segments with minimum altitudes of 100 feet. These routes are planned, of course, to avoid densely populated areas.

Specific information on Military Training Routes is provided in the Department of Defense Flight Information Publications. Many airport managers and fixed base operators as well as the General Aviation District Offices have these publications. The Flight Service Stations can give pilots current information on whether a route is being used.

Air Force fighter pilots are also extremely concerned about civilian aircraft entering their gunnery range airspace. Major Charles Bukoski, chief of airspace management at Homestead Air Force Base, said that the gunnery range at Avon Park, FL had 23 civilian aircraft enter its restricted airspace during a two-month period this fall.

Mixing it up with as many as four fighters that are strafing and dropping practice bombs can be dangerous. During weapons delivery, the fighters are flying between 350 and 500 knots and rapidly diving and climbing between the ground and 10,000 feet or higher.

"Throw a nickel on the grass" is the opening line of an old fighter pilot song. The second line says the nickel will save a fighter pilot's posterior (actually rhymes with grass).

In midair collision avoidance, the civilian pilot's awareness of low altitude military training (the symbol nickel) could save not only a fighter pilot's posterior, but his own.

During a 45 degree dive bomb delivery a fighter pilot's concentration is on the target rather than other aircraft.

Major Higbee said that, strangely enough, there have been more private pilots met, or nearly met, by the fighter pilots directly over the bombing range, which is restricted airspace, than over the approaches.

He said the low approaches, which make up only a small part of the Homestead training program, start from the southern end over the Tamiami Trail at Copeland and

FROM THE GRAPEVINE

By BRENDA BUNTING

After much consideration though, (and housework) I decided enough was truly enough.

"If you don't put your clothes in the dirty clothes basket, they won't get washed," I told Bob.

"Okay," he said. "Sure thing. I guess I can manage that."

Well, that was easy, I thought. Now to work on the boys.

"Pick up your clothes, make your beds, hang up the clothes," I told them. I think I got carried away. Oh well, what did I have to lose?

A few months back, in the throes of coping with an aggravating situation, I cornered worthy advisor (as opposed to unworthy idiot) Dean Jones to help me with a recurring problem.

Every office seems to have one person to whom everyone gravitates when they need an answer, and in this office, it seems Dean bears up under many crises.

I have reached the limit of my patience. I complained to Dean. In my house we have four dirtier-uppers and only one cleaner-upper. No matter how much I complain, nothing changes.

"That's got a simple answer," he said. "Just don't pick up after them."

That's mutiny! I thought. Give up the superwoman image and admit I couldn't handle a full-time job and a house all by my lonesome? Never! So I ignored the advice for a while. After all, what does he know? Shouldn't have asked him in the first place.

Somewhere along the line, a slob list was invented. We put all our names on the blackboard in the kitchen and every time one of us has to pick up after someone else a mark is put next to their name. At the end of the week the marks are counted up and the person with the most marks owes a quarter, second slob owes twenty cents, third place merits fifteen cents, and the one with the least marks gets all the money.

It has worked out great so far and my life has been made much easier. And since I always win out as the least of the slob, my piggy bank is growing.

With the rising cost of groceries, coupons are a great way to beat the inflation monster just a little.

Just pick out the coupons you can use and leave them ones that you have that you don't use.

Sounds like a great idea to me!

Class Notes

Eduardo Manuel Varona of Belle Glade, a student at University of Central Florida, has been named to the President's Honor Roll for his academic achievement, having compiled a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Teresita Maria Gomez of Belle Glade has been awarded a BS degree in journalism from the University of Florida.

He succeeds Bill Bailey of Belle Glade and will serve for the coming year.

Commissioner Frank Foster of West Palm Beach (District 2) was named vice-chairman, also by unanimous action, supported by Peggy Evatt and Norman Gregory along with Koehler and Bailey.

Koehler is the first district 3 commissioner chosen as the board chairman since 1964 when the late Ed Bandlow served.

Prior to his election, Koehler, who was vice-chairman this past year, read a resolution of commendation which pointed out Bailey's accomplishments as 1979 chairman.

In response, Bailey noted all commissioners shared in the actions which advanced public beach purchases, water and sewage projects, ongoing improvements in the county bus system and safety programs at Palm Beach International Airport.

One of the first actions of the restructured commission was the consideration of $187 million road bond issue.

The board, after hearing reports of a sample survey by a private consulting firm, agreed to place the issue on the March 11th

Presidential Primary ballot

County attorney, Richard Ellington, on the motion of Bailey, was directed to draft a resolution by next Tues. (Jan. 22) to pave the way for the bond issue vote.

The ballot question, commissioners agreed, would include a list of roads to be built or improved throughout the county.

Commissioners meet Tuesday are expected to finalize the list of road needs and formally pass the resolution.

Hal Stayman, director of the county's Economic Council and liaison with a "Blue Ribbon Committee of 35," said the consultant's survey showed 42 percent of those queried favored a road bond issue, 44 percent were opposed at this time and 14 percent had no opinion.

He said repayment of the issue, while it would vary year to year, at no time would exceed $42 annually to the average property owner.

Eckankar lecture is Jan. 29

BELLE GLADE—A lecture on Eckankar, a discipline which teaches the soul can leave the body and travel between 12 levels of existence, will be held at 7:45 p.m. Jan. 29 at the Belle Glade Municipal Library.

John Harris of West Palm Beach, the Palm Beach County area representative of Eckankar, and his assistant, Tom Rogers said there are already a few Eckists in the Glades area but the lecture is intended to acquaint anyone interested with the discipline.

Harris and Rogers said Eckankar is a way of life, rather than a religion or a philosophy and has two goals: self-realization and God-realization.

Rogers said self-realization is the full awareness of a person's self as a soul, adding it comes as a certain stage of one's spiritual development.

God-realization, he said, is the awareness of one's spiritual nature. The two said people within the discipline call God Sugmad, which they said is an ancient word used for the 12th level of consciousness.

Harris said Eckankar is as old as mankind, adding that past masters of ECK included Plato and Pythagoras, two Greek philosophers.

Although saying Eckankar is not a religion, Harris and Rogers said anyone who embraces the discipline probably wouldn't remain within a more traditional faith.

"We believe the whole reason for being here," Harris said, "is to experience. That's how consciousness raises (eq)." He said everyone's consciousness will be raised through a number of incarnations but ECK accelerates that rise.

"It's like if you walk into a wall and bump your nose," he said. "If you do that several times, you're going to realize it's unpleasant and you'll change direction."

Harris said there are perhaps 10 Eckists in Palm Beach County at three million around the world with a growing number in Africa.

He said he doesn't make his living by giving lectures and talks. Eckankar, that's a contract and teaches ECK on the side.

"Nobody makes any money off this," he said, "and the whole world isn't going to get something out of ECK. We don't get involved in psychic things and people interested only in astrology charts would be interested."

Harris said if anyone needs more information before the lecture, he can reach him at 793-6025.

AVE TRIED NEW REX
NINE-O?

If you haven't you should. Nine-O is a whole new concept in atrazine. Granules in a bag that pour like a liquid. Nine-O goes into solution almost instantly, and disperses quickly. No dust. No rinsing. It's the only formulation that empties completely. No bulky containers to dispose of, either. Light-weight plastic bags are burnable. Nine-O -- a whole new concept in atrazine -- available only from CIBA-GEIGY, the people who brought you atrazine in the first place. AAtrex® and Nine-O® are trademarks of CIBA-GEIGY

15 hurt in crash

BELLE GLADE—A total of 15 persons were injured and 16 more escaped injury Wednesday afternoon when two vans and a truck were involved in a crash on SR80 just east of the Agricultural Research and Experiment Center (AREC).

Transported to Doctor's Hospital in Lake Worth was Saintclair Joseph of 517 S. W. Fifth St. Mr. Joseph suffered a fractured femur (thigh bone), several lacerations on her face and body and possible internal injuries. She had to be extracted from the van she was riding in with a Hurst tool, popularly known as the Jews of life.

Admitted to Glades General Hospital was Delma Oxane, 28, of 517 S. W. Ave. B' Place. Ms. Oxane had a possibly fractured hip.

Thirteen more passengers received emergency treatment in the Glades General Hospital emergency room for an assortment of minor injuries, including lacerations, abrasions and shock.

Belle Glade Patrolman Larry

Coonfare said he charged Jean Lucas, 63, of 116 S. W. Fifth St. with careless driving and carrying too many passengers. Besides Lucas, there were 19 passengers in the 15 passenger van Lucas was driving.

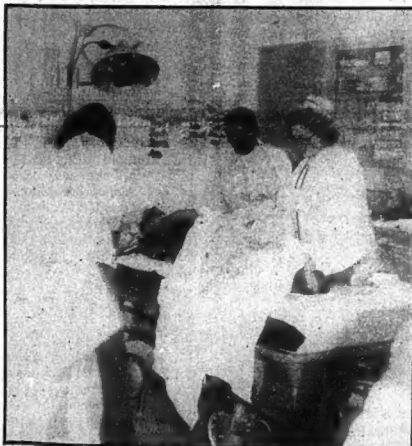

All the 15 injured parties were passengers in Lucas' van.

Belle Glade Police Sgt. Larry Thompson said the accident occurred when a van driven by Charles Gibbons, 55, of 504 S. W. Third St., stopped in the westbound lane of SR80 about 100 yards east of the AREC for road construction.

A 1½-ton truck owned by Atlantic Sugar Corp. and driven by Ronald Reckley, 55, of 1233 S. W. Ave. E stopped behind Gibbons' van. Reckley was alone in the cab of the truck and Gibbons was carrying 14 passengers in his van.

Thompson said Lucas apparently didn't see the truck driven by Reckley, failed to stop and struck Reckley's truck in the left rear, wedging it between Gibbons' van

County road bond is explained

Palm Beach County Commissioner Bill Bailey and County Engineer Herb Kahfert joined hands Wednesday morning to explain the proposed county road bond issue to members of the Canal Hazards Safety Committee.

Bailey told the committee members there are only two projects which would be built if the road bond is passed by the voters during the Mar. 11 presidential preference primary election but Glades residents would benefit by other projects and he backs the issue.

The county commissioner noted the only District Five projects are the reconstruction of three miles of Airport Road east of Belle Glade and the construction of four-laned SR80 between 20 Mile Bend and where the relocated SR80 intersects SR700.

On the other hand, Bailey said Glades residents would also benefit by two other projects which would see the killer highway four-laned all the way from 20 Mile Bend east to Military Trail.

He said the county commission moved officially Tuesday to put the bond issue on the Mar. 11 ballot and in response to a survey taken earlier this month by the county, re-adopted a development impact fee which would assess $300 for the building permits of new residences to be used to build roads.

Kahfert said the survey indicated 42 per cent of the respondents are in favor of the bond issue and 44 per cent are opposed while 14 per cent are undecided, "and most of the people polled hadn't heard anything about the bond."

The engineer said the survey also indicated, however, that 69 per cent of the respondents would be in favor of the bond issue if the impact fee were reinstated. Bailey said that was the reason for the commissioner's action Tuesday.

Kahfert said there is a total need of $380 million worth of road construction in the county right now and the bond issue would raise an estimated $187.5 million which would Glades garbage to go to coast?

By DEAN JONES
Herald-Observer Editor

BELLE GLADE — With only eight months of life left in the city's sanitary landfill, a decision was made Monday night that could mean garbage and trash generated in the Glades will be transported to the coast until a permanent solution to solid-waste disposal can be found.

Members of the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority's Glades Budget and Policy Advisory Committee (B&PAC) adopted a plan to set up an interim transfer station operation plan which is expected to be bucked to the Authority when it next meets Feb. 20.

The B&PAC members were presented with a proposed contract with BW Energy Systems, Inc. to provide a facility designed to cook garbage, using a method known as pyrolysis to help pay for the disposal by selling a by-product similar to diesel fuel.

The problem faced by the committee members, however is the short life expectancy of the city landfill and the realization it could be some time before the pyrolysis plant will go into operation.

Besides, Solid Waste Authority Director Tim Hunt said, even with the pyrolysis plant, assuming it ever goes into operation, certain solid waste will still have to be transported and the company is expected to be able to provide the transfer station and equipment in case the facility doesn't work as planned.

Hunt said he hasn't refined the figures yet, but a preliminary estimate of the cost for the transfer station and three tractor-trailers to make the runs to the coast to be just over $500,000. The capital costs and day-to-day operation, he said, will probably cost Glades residents a maximum of $13 per ton.

He said another consideration was that with the price of fossil fuels jumping as much as 88 per cent last year, the cost of incinerators, another method considered earlier, will be shortly reaching $25 a ton.

"That makes landfills more viable," he said.

Hunt proposed to the B&PAC that the transfer station could be built at the present landfill site. He said the only thing needed would be a blacktopped area atop the landfill, along with truck scales and a 14-foot retaining wall.

Garbage collection trucks would haul their loads to the paved area, dump it after it's weighed and it would then be pushed over the retaining wall into 92-foot trailers by a front-end loader.

Hunt said three tractor-trailers, one front-end loader and a service pickup truck would be needed. The transfer station and vehicles would serve Belle Glade, South Bay and the unincorporated area west of 20 Mile Bend. Pahokee may also be asked if that city wants to participate.

Should the pyrolysis system be adopted eventually, the transfer station would be used to haul waste items such as old appliances and as a backup system.

Pyrolysis was presented as "the wave of the future" to the B&PAC last July, with company officials saying the system cooks down garbage and trash to the point the only residue is 5 per cent inert ash along with oil and gas that could be used to power hot water heaters or vehicles.

Squadron Commander Kenneth Lutz and officer Doug Wooten were working on the building, which the squadron hopes will eventually house a squadron light plane.
